Time is Money - card & coin meters from the UK's leading manufacturer

Mevagissey Model Railway – Jun 2006 “Fair Play for All” at children’s railway in Cornwall

The toy railway at Mevagissey Model Railway in Cornwall ensures that the children’s railway is used fairly by using tokens to pay for the rides. One token is given free to the child for the first ride and can then be purchased for subsequent rides. This ensures that one child does not hog the ride and allows all comers to use the children’s railway.

This is made possible by the use of electronic controls systems produced by Leisure Controls Systems International, who produce coin, card or push button operated systems. The main display at Mevagissey Model Railway is also controlled by one of LCI’s systems which allows the older child to use a card (which they purchase at the shop) to start the trains.

The model railway is just one of many uses for electronic control systems in the leisure industry which not only control the way the models are used but also allows for the owner to adjust the charges according to customer demand. Other uses are to activate displays in museums and permanent exhibitions; lighting historic roofs such as churches and lighting for sports arenas to control lighting at dusk.
